BACK, MIND BLANK

Prester Doesn't Recall Alleged Bootleggers or Alcohol He Took From Bradley Beach Police.

Charles J. Prester, a Prohibition enforcement agent, missing since Wednesday morning, was found today at his home, No. 109 Court Street, Newark, by Enforcement Director Dema. Questions about certain happenings in which he has figured during the past forty-eight hours brought no satisfactory replies. Prester professing to be unable to remember where he was or what he did since Wednesday morning, when he left the office under assignment to go to Rahway.

It seems Prester, instead of going to Rahway, went to Bradley Beach and demanded from Chief of Police Borden custody of Jack Miller and Sam Callahan, two Newark worthies arrested there Tuesday night with a truck carrying 800 gallons of grain alcohol. This Chief of Police turned over the prisoners, the truck and the 800 gallons of alcohol and Prester went away with them.

Wednesday afternoon Agent Malone was sent to Bradley Beach by Chief Dema with instructions to take charge of Miller and Callahan and the truck and the alcohol. He reached there several hours after Prester had departed.

Prester got home early this morning. Nothing has been seen of Miller or Callahan or the truck or the alcohol.

Court Makes New York Girl Give Ring Back to Tennesseean She Knew Two Weeks.

With a 2-karat platinum-set diamond ring on his finger, George White, twenty-five years old, came to New York two weeks ago from Chattanooga, Tenn., looking for a peanut concession in the arena. He did not see it but he did meet Miss Hazel Thyer, eighteen, in the St. Nicholas dancing establishment in West 65th Street.

Miss Thyer admired the ring and borrowed it to show to "the girls." When she failed to return it George got a summons for Miss Thyer, who lives at No. 32 West 65th Street. In the West Side Court, today, Magistrate McGuire asked her how long she had known George.

"Two weeks," she replied, with a beaming smile. "We are engaged."

"Gave you a ring, didn't he?" the court asked. Miss Thyer admitted it and produced the ring.

The court examined the jewel, which George said had belonged to his mother, and dropped it into George's hand. Then he turned to Miss Thyer and said: "Known him two weeks, all? That's a little too fast, girlie." And then to White: "Keep your ring and stay out of New York! Next case!"

NOISY BURGLARS CAUGHT.

Wanted to Make Easy Money—Made Too Much Commotion.

Arthur Lovell of No. 728 11th Avenue and Richard Garland of No. 158 West 56th Street, both nineteen and chauffeurs, were held to-day in $5,000 bail in the West Side Court charged with robbing a grocery store at No. 401 West 23d Street.

Neighbors were aroused early to-day by a crash of glass and tumbling boxes and cans. Policeman Tobin entered the store by a rear window, which had been broken, and reported finding the two inside. In response to his ques-
